Course Outline

This course is designed for the 2nd year students to acquire the hands-on understanding of the composite, research subjects, main characteristics, and actual working of existing laboratories in the School of Agriculture at Ito campus by visiting about a half of them. After the introductory orientation, students visit the laboratories (either Group 1 or Group 2 of their choice) on the weekly basis. In their 15 minutes lab visit, students are provided the information of the laboratory by the representative of the lab (either professor or graduate student), followed by a Q & A session. They may be allowed to observe the lab facilities as well. This laboratory rotation will form the basis for their choice of three laboratories that they will visit monthly for Laboratory Rotation I in the following semester.
